

Strike Forces Into Weeks Setback

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A return to the peacetime production peak in the United States—a peak attained on the eve of the 17-day strike of soft-coal miners—will take a month or two, government economists predicted Tuesday.

Besides the coal itself—not only a source of power but a basic material in production—the other industry hardest and most directly hit by the strike was steel. Steel also is a fundamental link affecting the whole chain of the economy, and analysts said it probably will take two or three weeks or more to restore steel production.

The automobile industry, another sufferer, was seen as rebounding somewhat more quickly—in a week or two.

Also hit quickly and hard were parts makers, whose production loss threatened to throw out of gear the making of many finished products.

Several scarce building materials, including cement, and chemicals, paper and pulp also were said to have felt the effects of the coal stoppage sharply.

Meanwhile the United States supreme court granted the government's request for a speedy ruling in the coal case and agreed to decide another question of vital interest to John L. Lewis—the unionization of commerce.

The court approved the government's motion to bypass the strike and settle the legality of Judge Clegg's restraining order against Mr. Lewis "in view of the public interest involved."

Even though the strike was over and most of the miners had returned to work, it set the case for argument Jan. 14. Its decision could come any time after then and it probably will be delivered well ahead of the deadline Mr. Lewis set for the strike to end Saturday for a possible new strike in entering the $90,000,000 back to work.

Meanwhile Senator Robert Taft, Ohio, told reporters he has no reason for Congress to act on the government.

Fire-Trapped Guests in Atlanta Try Escape by Bed-Sheet Ropes

Dozens of terror-stricken hotel guests strung bed sheets into ropes and hung from windows in the burning Winifred Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., shortly after the fire was discovered sweeping through the building early Saturday night.

The night returning to work in most districts, found themselves out in an average of 100,000 miners, said during the strike, by unofficial estimates.

PITTSBURGH, (AP)—Soft coal production Tuesday mounted steadily throughout the United States with supplies already past 100,000 tons, and with the last group of the A.P.L. miners returning to work.

The Solid Fuels administration at Washington reported production Monday—the first working day after the bituminous strike ended—was 100,000 tons of coal, or 100,000 tons, what it was before John L. Lewis, back to work.

What the A.P.L. miners' return meant was the union's contract with the government.

Estimate Miners Lost $212,580,000

WASHINGTON, (AP)—John L. Lewis, soft coal miners' leader, said Tuesday that his union has lost as much as $212,580,000 in the last two strikes.

This estimate is based on the assumption that the 400,000 miners were idle by the strikes and that they would have earned $53.40 a week.

The United Mine Workers paid no strike benefits.

More Regarded as Test of Russian Influence

TEHRAN, Iran, (AP)—Iran government troops fought into the semi-autonomous province of Azerbaijan Tuesday night, after a brief, but temporary, when opposing forces blocked a bridge at the southern entrance to a strategic mountain pass.

Four columns moved into the state, which staged a revolt against Tehran while Russian troops were occupying northern Iran, to enforce Premier Ahmad Qavam's order for supervised elections.

Some diplomatic sources regarded this as an armed test of Russia's influence in Azerbaijan.

As government troops opened a battle against the Pehlevi, the militia of the Azerbaijan Democratic party, Premier Qavam sent a message to Dr. Salomonovich David, governor-general of Azerbaijan, that security forces had been ordered into the province to suppress parliamentary elections and would enter no matter what resistance.

Dr. Salomonovich, Iran's chief of staff, said casualties in the early fighting were reported to be light, with some Democrats killed and wounded.

He added that some captives had been taken and that a few Democrats had been executed.

In London a foreign official spokesman said Britain regarded the dispute as a purely internal affair. The spokesman added that British attitude would remain unchanged even if the dispute developed into a full-scale conflict.

Nothing was reported to be light, with some Democrats killed and wounded.

To Combat Menace Of Yule Tree Fires

A determined effort to eliminate the Christmas tree fire hazard is the first job being tackled by the newly-organized Edmonton Safety Council.

Every year there are numerous cases of persons being injured or fatally burned as a result of yule tree fires caused by lighted candles, short circuits in light strings, or having the tree too close to a stove or fireplace. The safety council hopes to help Edmonton citizens be free from this Christmas menace.

THE COUNCIL plans on having about 5,000 "fire warnings" tags attached. These are to be attached to all Christmas trees for sale in Edmonton. The reverse side of the tag will carry directions for the flame proofing of trees at home.

Those directions call for the use of either ammonium sulphate or calcium chloride, and as neither of these chemicals are normally available in small quantities the council is suggesting that the stores put in a small stock for sale in post-paid packages.

When your little one catches cold-

... do what mothers do to relieve misery of children's colds: Simply rub warm Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. Results are so good because VapoRub's special relief-bringing action starts right away and keeps on working for hours during the night while the child sleeps. Often for more than a week.

Remember, Mother, when your children catch cold... be sure you get line-tested Vicks VapoRub.

Even if objectives set for housing construction in the Dominion for 1947 are attained Alberta will still be short of essential housing for two more years, Arthur Arnold, provincial director of housing, said on his return from a conference of housing officials at Winnipeg.

MR. ARNOLD is skeptical over the construction of 10,000 housing units in the Dominion during 1947. "I think we will be lucky if 20,000 are completed before the end of next year. The supply situation is still bad," he said.

Alberta's share of next year's program is about 3,400 units. It was agreed that this province is in the worst shape of all as to housing the provincial housing director stated.

THE CONFERENCE, at which representatives from all federal and provincial housing agencies attended was termed "highly successful" by Mr. Arnold.

Mr. Arnold said that obtaining of bathroom and other plumbing facilities from former airports was doing much to relieve the situation but the case of houses completed in the province.

TO END DROUGHT, HE CLAIMS: Ready to banish drought with his moon-powered rain-making machine is Donald S. Johnston (above) of Regina, who stated matter-of-factly that it was his rainmaking apparatus that ended 12 years of drought in the southern Saskatchewan dust bowl in 1942. The machine consists of a steel framework to which are attached two horseshoe magnets and a coil. One of these magnets swings in a short arc and, according to Johnston, is synchronized with the movement of the earth and oscillates slow or fast according to the position of the moon. The function of the machine is to create an electromagnetic field by lessening evaporation and increasing condensation of raindrops in the atmosphere. Science has not accorded Mr. Johnston any recognition, but now that he is out of the army he'll be giving his machine a thorough try-out — an all-out attack on drought.

EXASPERATED SHOPPER STOPS BUS: A weary shopper, laden with bundles, watched three buses, loaded to capacity, whiz past her. A fourth bus stopped at a corner. Her foot touched the bottom step to the bus door. "That's all," barked the driver. "Sorry, can't take any more." And the door closed. That was the straw that broke the shopper's patience. The woman planted herself in front of the bus and defied the driver to start. The driver blew his horn. She didn't move. Dinner hour traffic was lined up more than a mile in back of the bus. A cacophony of automobile horns drew a policeman to the scene. He pleaded with the woman. A second officer arrived. Bystanders joined the confusion by taking sides. Finally the woman glared into the bus, shifted her bundles and walked off into the dusk. No one had thought to ask her name.

Write Brief Letters Filled With News

A group of teen-age girls ask me if I will give them a few suggestions about how to write a letter. Glad to do it, little sister, for the art is so much neglected as the art of letter-writing, yet so accomplished by such big dividends. A graceful-hand-and-better letter, promptly written, is the surest way for a girl to put herself on a boy's "must" list, while a delayed note of thanks is the quickest way to take her off it.

BUT LET'S GET DOWN TO BRASS TACKS. Let's begin at the beginning, which is your letter paper which will be your introduction to your correspondent, so to speak, and by which you will be judged. Let it be of as good quality as you can afford without any childish pictures or furbelows on it. Never, never, unless you are stranded on a desert island on which there is not a drop of ink or a single pen point, write with a lead pencil. No one unless it your mother will take the trouble to decipher the pale scribbles that look more half like effaced hieroglyphics than they do a personal message.

In former times it was considered bad form to write a personal letter on the typewriter, but that too has gone into the discard. In this busy, rushing, modern age we are so thankful to get a typewritten letter that we can read right off the bat, that we welcome it with joy and call down blessings on the writer's head.

Be it in mind that brevity is the soul of wit in letters, so don't drag yours out. Make 'em short and snappy. Nobody can be interesting and amusing for more than four pages of note paper. And if you want your letters to be eagerly looked for, confine yourself to home gossip. We all read the newspapers and know about the atomic bomb. What we long to hear about is Mary's new baby and John getting an advance in salary. And answer questions. So few people ever do that it will give you the name of being a brilliant letter-writer if you do.

IN DEALING with boys never write the first letter. Let Tom, Dick or Harry open the correspondence. And count in with him. Never write and ask a boy why he hasn't written to you. And be as careful of what you write to a boy as if you were putting dynamite in the envelope. It is a terrible temptation to a girl, when she sits down to write to a boy, to go romantic and shoot all over the paper with sentimental twaddle that she doesn't mean at all.

She kids herself into believing that the lad she is writing to will consider her letters sacred, and no eye will see them except his own, whereas, nine times out of ten, he is making Exhibit-A of them to prove what a lady-killer he is. A good rule to make and stick to is never to write anything to a boy that you wouldn't be willing to see printed in the newspapers.

When you are angry and have had a fight with the boy friend, or when you have done some silly thing that you are ashamed of, it is a good thing to sit down and write it all out. Tell him just what you think of him for standing you up and taking that very girl to the party. Confide every detail of your folly to your best friend. Then seal the letter up, and put them in the mailbox overnight. You will never mail them, and you will have yourself a lot of regrets.

Before you write to your enemy, a good letter, the kind of letter we like to get, is one that is clearly written so that it is easy to read; that tells news about people and things we know; and that shows interest in us and our affairs and is full of good cheer.

Follow these rules, and you cannot fail of being a good letter writer.

This year the same Christmas Seal is being used in Canada, Great Britain, the United States, Brazil, Mexico, British Guiana and Jamaica.

WOODWARD to do your disappointment stung tears in your eyes, leaping your voice in your throat. You couldn't say anything, so you slammed down the receiver. And that was that. Your dreams of Molly's party had just naturally included Jack. You'd go with him, he'd stick close to you the whole evening while you were with him. You couldn't imagine that party without Jack.

GALS AGLEE by E. Simms Campbell

Well, it will all straighten out in time. So there's no point in rushing the run. If Jack's interest has waned, you would look silly if you tried to force the matter. He's just being a tease, because of the heart-out abrupt end to the telephone conversation—his temper will cool off in time.

But don't forget—you can't count on anything from anybody. You can't anticipate what Jack or any other boy will jump to do, or what he will do. You must plan their moves for them. All you can do is grin and hide your disappointment and cheer if they won't jump through the hoops you hold up for them.

Elizabeth Woodward Says . . .

The emotion between you and Jack was mighty mutual. You'd been going places and doing things together for many months. And Molly's party was on the list. At least as far as you were concerned. She'd told you all about it, who was invited—what you were going to do—and what she was going to wear. And you were plenty excited. This was going to be fun, and of course, you'd ask Jack to go along with you. You wouldn't dream of asking anyone else.

So you called him up. Molly's party—Friday night—great fun—let him see you. And he told you he'd be there. Friday night was on, he had something else. Your disappointment stung tears in your eyes, leaping your voice in your throat. You couldn't say anything, so you slammed down the receiver. And that was that. Your dreams of Molly's party had just naturally included Jack. You'd go with him, he'd stick close to you the whole evening while you were with him. You couldn't imagine that party without Jack.

CHOP SUEY IS NOT A CHINESE DISH!

If you think chop suey originated in China, you have another guess coming. For it is a concoction of American food, and is unknown in China as a native dish. It is generally believed that Marshall La Hung Chang invented the dish as a snack when he was visiting in America. He was asked if he could prepare a Chinese dish for some of the American friends. Thereupon, he put together all the food at hand and gave the dish its unusual flavor by pouring on soy sauce. When asked the name of the dish, he picked up two chopsticks, dipped their tips into the sauce, and said "Chop Suey." A San Francisco restaurant soon popularized the dish, and it is now available in all American Chinatowns.

Your Baby And Mine

BY MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

THE MOTHER who is alone with her child for all of the daytime hours, finds him disagreeable and discontented when she has company. And she is to blame, for she is so used to having it, and cries and hangs onto her, to prevent her from talking to others.

If she pushes him, he grows hysterical, so that she has come to feel herself a martyr; to his demands. She cannot have company or be company with any pleasure.

The answer is never punishment. That merely frightens the child into the belief that he really has lost his mother. He will be a company always if it remained connected in his mind with punishment.

INSTEAD he needs daily practice in becoming more independent of her. He needs children with whom to play, so that he goes outdoors happily, leaving her behind. He needs first her, then several others, until he is weaned from dependence upon her for society.

He must have periods in which he plays alone, even if they are the only two persons in the house. He has relied too much upon her companionship, upon her loving approval when he miled his blocks successfully, when he scribbled a recognizable man, all the incidents of his day.

Because he has been with her so constantly, she has to lower off her attentions gradually. None of this can be accomplished in a day or a few days. It has been going on too long.

Then she can leave him alone, give him a hug and kiss and wish him a brand new toy, with which he is never played.

SHOULD go about her affairs and leave him to his. If he is in a room with a gate, out of which he cannot come at will, he will be sure to make an expedition of his toys, while she does her work. Occasionally she should give him a cheerful word, or he should hear her singing so that he knows she is nearby.

If he cries she should console him, but leave him just the same. If her choice of toy, or house hold appliance, is interesting to him, he'll get along without her, and find himself happy.

Then when company comes or the mother has to leave the child, he must be taught to play with other children, or by himself and not longer grieve when his mother's attention is diverted from him.

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I wonder why it is that so many luscious dishes are calorie packed? It almost seems as though some mischievous fiend went about putting an extra dash of calories into the articles which make food most enjoyable.

Take the question of butter! It's almost pure fat, and it adds greatly to the flavor of vegetables. Yet, butter is almost pure fat and must be restricted in the reducing diet.

One small ball or stringy tablespoon or restaurant pat has about 100 calories. Therefore you can readily see how quickly butter counts up in the reducing diet.

As well as being extremely palatable, butter is a splendid source of vitamin A. Even when reduced to its purest, butter is a good source of vitamins.
